

Conserving the Critically Endangered Yellow-naped Parrot Amazona auropalliata on Guanaja island, Honduras

Anuar Romero Acosta & Crystal Vance Guerra

*Within 10 years, Yellow-naped Parrot Amazona auropalliata was 'uplisted' from Least Concern to Critically Endangered. A worthy species indeed to benefit from a NBC Conservation Award to Honduran initiative Green Island Challenge – whose project has already produced spectacular successes.*

All photographs taken on Guanaja island, Honduras, by Green Island Challenge.

1–2 The Critically Endangered Yellow-naped Parrot Amazona auropalliata usually nests in natural cavities in trees.
